Miss Ina Hollingsworth and E. T. Cuff, popular young people of this community have plighted vows at the marriage altar and are one. Though they rather took some of us by surprise, we hasten to wish for them many years of happiness.

Much is being said about preparedness these days, and in many instances it is well to be prepared. The question is, which is the best way to go about it. Should we, as a civilized nation, keep a gun in our pocket to shoot our neighbors? Should we make great guns and keep them drawn on our neighbors? Which should we fear, poverty-stricken Mexico or crippled, war-ridden Germany?

Could Germany spare men from the trenches in Europe and Asia and invade our country? Are big guns and battle ships emblems of peace or an incentive to war? This is answered in the greatest war in the history of the world.

Why not go at it in a different way? Let all civilized nations of the world form a great union; let them lay aside the implements of war; beat our swords into plowshares and our spears into pruning hooks and learn war no more. It would not be long, then, nor difficult to bring the less civilized nations into subjection by a peaceful solution of international affairs.

Give us peace; you gave us prosperity. War means destruction, famine, rapine, misery!

No. 666 will cure chills and fever. It is the most speedy remedy we know.

PURE BRED CATTLE AND SILOS

The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway has in recent years been instrumental in the distribution of approximately five thousand blooded breeding animals in the agricultural localities reached by its lines. Such distribution has been effected through public sales directed by local live stock associations, cooperating with the several national breeders associations.

It is desired primarily, in addition to inducing an intelligent breeder here and there to establish pure bred herds to supply the rapidly growing Southern demand for registered cattle, to encourage the general use of pure bred sires on grade herds, thus improving and increasing the quality and quantity of beef, pork and mutton produced for the general market.

Recognizing the essential value of the silo in feeding live stock in the South, the industrial, agricultural and immigration division of the traffic department of the road has published a comprehensive booklet on silos and silage, which has been given wide distribution along the company's lines.

The publication is still available without cost, and will be mailed to any address upon application to L. P. Bellish, general agent, Nashville, Tenn. In fact, the company solicits requests from its agricultural patrons for this and other instructive literature.
